Innovation Ethics: African and Global Perspectives (Globethics.net Global) (Volume 7) Jean-Claude Bastos de Morais, Christoph Stückelberger

Innovation is a core driver for economic growth and development. Africa is one of the upcoming continents in this respect. But there are manifold ethical challenges in innovation. The 14 authors from three continents, with a focus on Africa, give innovative multidisciplinary insights to technological, social, cultural, political, spiritual and research aspects of the ethics of innovation. “This ambitious and refreshing collection is a kaleidoscope, an ideas box for public policy, inspiring and surprising - not only for the quality of the contributions but also for what it reveals about its two editors: a high-flying financier does not generally spend too much time with an ethics professor. Who knew that powerful money-making gurus could be sensible to ethical desire?” (Célestin Monga, Senior Advisor, The World Bank) “The book volume exquisitely describes the complex relationships amongst innovation, ethics, and tradition. It is a must read for everyone interested in innovation and governance.” (Kevin Urama, Managing Director, Quantum Global Research Lab, Zug/Switzerland)
